

ACKNOWLEDGEMENTS

I thank my supervisor, Dr. Larry Perkins, for going through this material as a New Testament scholar with a fine-tooth comb, offering numerous suggestions for improvement and posing many questions that stimulated further reflection. I especially thank him for his consistent prompting for cohesion. Once I caught on, everything fell into place. I thank my second reader, Dr. Archie Spencer, for approaching this study as a systematic theologian and preventing me from falling into the pitfall of theological error. I especially thank him for pushing me for further clarity on the issues of the Trinity and theosis or deification.

I thank the instructors of the courses that needed to be taken in connection with obtaining the degree of Doctor of Ministry. They are: the late Dr. Stanley Grenz, Dr. Phil Zylla, Dr. Ron Toews, Dr. Larry Perkins, Dr. Lyle Schrag, Dr. Guy Saffold, Dr. Kevin Mannoia, Dr. Daniel Block, Dr. Daryl Busby, Dr. Gordon Smith, Dr. Kenton Anderson, Dr. Ken Radant and Mr. Bill Badtke. Each of these courses prepared me for this study and fed into it in its own way.

I thank my fellow Doctor of Ministry cohort members with whom I had the privilege of taking courses and enjoying retreats. They are: Daniel Beutler, Ron Davis, Mark Hagamoen, Roger Helland, Rick Heavenor, Barb Orlowski and Colin Van Der Kuur. Each of you in your own way contributed to this study.

I thank the participants in the learning experience. In the Friday night group, they are: Ed and Agnes Baartman, Fred Hofman, Jenny Kok, Cathie Mallie, Elsina Moes, Sjoerd and At Nap, Ray ten Brinke, Leo and Alice Van Huizen, Len and Sylvia Trommel, Henk and Marya van Beelen. In the Sunday night group, they are: Marvin and Ursula MacDonald, Jerry and Nellie Scholtens, Arnold and Valerie Sikma, Willy and Ann ten Haaf, Hugo and Wilma Vanderhoek, Kevin and Melanie Visscher. Without your participation, this study would not have been able to be completed.

I thank Dr. Gannon Murphy for sending me a digital copy of his doctoral dissertation Consuming Glory: A Classical Defense of Divine-Human Relationality Against Open Theism. His Reformed understanding of divine-human relationality and his suggestion for developing a theotic spirituality have left their stamp on this study.

I thank Frederica Matthewes Green, Khuria of the Holy Cross Antiochian Orthodox Church in Linthicum Heights, Maryland, for sending me digital copies of a number of her speeches and taking the time to answer my questions about Eastern Orthodoxy by email. I also thank Mr. Ben Anderson, reader at Holy Cross Antiochian Orthodox Church, for taking the time to answer my questions about Eastern Orthodoxy. Your insight into some of the details of Eastern Orthodoxy was much appreciated and whets my appetite to know more.

I thank my friend Dr. Jos Douma for his continued friendship and books on Christ-centered spirituality. Your friendship and publications continue to have a deep impact on my life. I also thank Drs. Philip Troost for the timely publication of his insightful book Christus Ontvangen: gereformeed en charismatisch: leren van elkaar. Your book made a deep impact on my life and this study.

I thank my daughter Mary-Anne Vanderhorst for doing the formatting of the Participant's Guide.

I thank my friend Henk van Beelen and my son Ian Moes for their faithful proofreading of the manuscript. Any typos that remain are my responsibility.

I thank the members of the Surrey Covenant Reformed Church for their continued love, grace and fellowship. "I was hungry and you gave me something to eat, I was thirsty and you gave me something to drink, . . . I needed clothes and you clothes me" (Mt. 25:35-36). Your continued love and trust is a daily source of encouragement to me. It is only fitting that I dedicated the participant's guide to you.

I thank my wife Elsina for her willingness to give me the time I needed to work on this study, her countless trips to the Trinity Western University Library on her way home from her work at this institution and her constant words of encouragement. It is only fitting that I dedicate this study to you.

I thank my Triune God whose hand I continually and sometimes mysteriously felt upon me as I completed this study.
